Talking points

1. What are these cartoons saying about school board members being harassed and threatened over issues like face mask rules or the curriculum?
2. Should protesters who threaten school officials or employees with violence or death face prosecution?
3. Would investigating complaints of harassment infringe on protesters' freedom of speech?
3. Is it fair to call law officials "the Gestapo" (Nazi secret police) for proposing investigations?

Between the lines

"As these acts of malice, violence, and threats against public school officials have increased ... these heinous actions could be the equivalent to a form of domestic terrorism and hate crimes." - National School Boards Association
