In-Class Procedure

1. Warm up: Explain the meaning of "scavenger hunt". Explain the purpose of scanning - to find specific details in a text quickly.
2. Give each learner a newspaper and a worksheet. Ask learners to read the entire list of search items before beginning to scan. Clarify any unknown vocabulary
3. Remind learners that each scavenger hunt is a general list of items commonly found in a typical newspaper on that life skill topic. Thus, all of the items on the list might not appear in any particular day's newspaper. Explain that learners don't need to find the items in order - they can write the answer to any item on the list whenever they find it.
4. Announce a time limit and write it on the board. Let learners begin.
5. When the time limit is up, have learners share their results in small groups.

TAKE-HOME ACTIVITIES:

For adult learner:

Ask learners to write a 10-item scavenger hunt based on a particular day's newspaper as described in the Tips and Options section below. Learners can exchange hunts the next day and do their partner's hunt in class.

For learner and child(ren):

Ages 3-8: Parents and young children can make their own impromptu hunts using the "I Spy" technique. For example, sitting together with the newspaper, the parent and child can take turns saying, "I spy a picture of a woman wearing a big hat," "I spy the word 'girls'", "I spy a dollar sign", "I spy a triangle", etc.

Grades 1-4: Learners and their children can use the "For Parents and Children" scavenger hunt worksheet provided in this section. Children can either look for the pictures or the words based on their literacy level.

Tips and Options:

1. Learners can be divided into teams. The team that finds the most items on the scavenger hunt within the given time limit wins.
2. Teachers or learners can write scavenger hunts based on a particular day's newspaper. These hunts will be specifically tailored to the photos, headlines, advertisements and news articles of that day's paper.
